

2018-19 Heartland AEA Leadership Series

Featuring Kevin Honeycutt Midnight Run

Kevin Honeycutt grew up in poverty and as he witnessed education around the country, he collected powerful experiences that still influence his conversations and his work with educators. He spent 13 years teaching K-12 art in public school and for 17 years spent summers leading creative adventure camps for kids of all ages.

Kevin is the author of the book Midnight Run, which is his story of growing up in poverty. Based upon his personal story and struggles, his presentation is geared toward helping educators see the signs of poverty and to develop strategies for empowering students to improve their academic potential.

Registration

April 2, 2019

Heartland AEA, 6500 Corporate Drive, Johnston

Superintendent Session

9:00 a.m.-Noon Kevin Honeycutt

Register at this link: <https://goo.gl/eJAnmT>

Break

Noon-1:00 p.m.

Lunch on your own.

All Educator Session

1:00-4:00 p.m.

Register at this link: <https://goo.gl/9C5ekj>

For more information, contact:

Jim Verlengia, Ed.D.

Director of Leadership Supports at Heartland AEA

jverlengia@heartlandaea.org

(515) 270-0405 ext. 14388

“I’m telling my story, my way in the hope that anyone going through a similar experience might benefit from the lessons I learned that helped me build a better life. If you find any of the stories poignant or emotional, I ask that you use those feelings to help others who are struggling in life because everyone deserves a chance to make a “midnight run” to a brighter future.

”

Heartland AEA Leadership Series

Kevin Honeycutt's presentation is part of the Heartland AEA 2018-19 Leadership Series. Some of today's most intriguing, innovative and influential leaders from around the country share their background, insight and knowledge in this new series for educators. Speakers will candidly share their experiences, discuss challenges that have impacted their work and provide a unique opportunity to learn from their hands-on experiences.